

Stories Along The KHT Corridor

Ryan Stonebraker

Hiked The KHT From January 1-11, 2023

My favorite section was the Knobstone Trail. It was marked the best and had gorgeous views. The terrain was rough which I expected. I didn't expect to hear so many dogs when camping. The views were great. My least favorite section was the PT. It was too much road walking (road was busy!) and the camp area was loud. I won't do that section again or recommend it. I did high mileage to get to the next part as quickly as possible. The HNF was a pretty stretch for the most part. It needs to be marked better. I used my GPS/Maps on my phone to try to keep me on the path. Several times I was turned around and had to navigate around. The TT was much easier walking and beautiful views. The markings got a little hidden in parts just because the trail was rerouted but it wasn't a big deal. The barn was a neat stop with all the socks. The last stretch of the trail was supposed to go in an area that was being logged so I couldn't do those few miles. Overall it was a good hike and I will recommend parts of it to more hikers. Thanks for the experience!

Submitted by Ryan Stonebraker (Feb 5, 2023)